Another American Girl
The Stratosphere Plane
Strange Sign of Love
Other Days, Other Greece

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

AMELIA EARHART lands in Wales after 21 hours' flight across the Atlantic.

Her courageous exploit is doubly welcome. It shows what American girls can do and will make it unnecessary for other American girls to risk their lives, the thing having now been done.

IN Germany engineers of highest rank are engaged on a "stratosphere airplane," to climb ten miles. In that rarefied air of slight resistance it is hoped to attain a speed of 400 miles an hour.

• • •

FROM Berlin to New York in five hours is the German plan, and many may read this will see it realized.

• • •

THE German Experimental Institute of Aviation with the German government behind it and every important scientist in Germany co-operating, endorses the stratosphere plane, in which passengers will travel hermetically sealed, breathing artificially made atmosphere above the zone of natural oxygen.

AN endurance exhibition of dancing in New York, almost as bad as the cruel foot race across the continent, interests the public so mildly that the exhibition probably will not be repeated.

Dancers drop from fatigue, and one young man, who will marry his dancing partner when it is over, says, "If I am able to carry her around the room night and day for a week without wanting to kick her in the face, it must be love."

There are many grades of romance. The Fijian savage used to knock out his wife's upper front teeth on the wedding day.

IN sympathy with Macedonian and Thracian tobacco growers, labor in Greece calls a general strike. Sailors have joined and taken possession of Greek war ships.

This would interest Alexander, of Macedonia and Themistocles, daughter of a Thracian woman, who persuaded the Greeks to build one important fighting fleet.

• • •

"MOSCOW" is responsible, of course.

Workers in old Greek days were slaves. And in Sparta, those slaves, "helots," going to their work at sunrise, were often surprised and murdered by young Spartans as part of the latter's training for war.

NEW YORK says Chicago sent gangsters that "put over" a daring open-air murder on Sunday afternoon. E. J. Jerge, alias Edward Carter, stopped his car when the red light flashed at a busy New York corner.

Bandits that had trailed him jumped from their car, shot three bullets into his head, neck and lungs, and then made their "get-away," after opening the car door and firing a few more bullets to make sure.

• • •

REV. THOMAS WHELPLEY, who tried driving a New York taxicab between Sunday sermons to test the city's morality, calls New York "Gotham the Godless." He says the only commandment New York knows is "Don't get caught." Even that is an improvement. In Sodom, Gomorrah and ancient Rome they didn't care whether they got caught or not.

Not wanting to be caught is the dawn of conscience, just as a jelly-fish shrinking from the touch represents the dawn of consciousness.

OLD kings fought about territory, or some trifling "point of honor." Modern kings, of high finance, fight more usefully.

The Rockefeller Institue fights disease.

The two great electric companies, General Electric and Westinghouse Electric, are fighting lightning and its dangers, showing how to protect lives and property.

The big companies may some day harness the lightning, making it work its way from the clouds to the earth, as the waters of Niagara work on their way from the lakes to the ocean.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING

Columbus, June 19—Having been struck by lightning while playing in a playground near his home yesterday, Donald Thomas, 10, negro, is dead today, according to a police report. The boy died enroute to a hospital.

ELECTION WILL MARK CLOSE OF MEETING HERE

Brick Masons and Plasterers to Select 1929 Convention City

COMMITTEES TO REPORT

Kearn Gives Safety First Talk at Evening Session

Election of officers for the coming year and the selection of a meeting place for the 1929 conference, will feature the closing session of the twenty-third annual conference of the Brick Masons and Plasterers' International Union, this afternoon. The present officers are J. A. Wise, Cleveland, president; Charles Midlam, Cleveland, first vice president; Thomas Russell, Cincinnati, second vice president, and Joseph W. Jockel, Cleveland, secretary and treasurer.

This morning's session of the conference opened at 9 o'clock in the Eagles Hall and adjourned until 11 o'clock when reports of the various committees appointed at yesterday morning session, were read. The reports were given behind closed doors. Among the committees reporting was a committee on ways and means, another on legislation, another on resolutions and another on compensation.

Columbus and Toledo were said to be two of the cities of the state who are in the race for the 1929 gathering.

Approximately 70 per cent. of the accidents which occur in the construction field in the state of Ohio each year are due to falls which could have been prevented, it was declared by Thomas F. Kearn of the State Industrial Commission in a talk at the afternoon session of the convention.

Mr. Kearn, who took as the subject of his talk, "Safety," declared many of these accidents could have been prevented had both the employer and the workman shown the proper care and judgment. The commission, the speaker said, had set out this year to reduce the number of accidents 25 per cent under that of 1927, but the number of accidents thus far this year, will make this hardly possible, he said.

The blame for accidents was placed on both the employer, who after he pays his state compensation insurance feels that he has done all he should and on the employe who is careless. The daredevil spirit was pointed out by the speaker as being responsible for a large number of accidents to men employed in the construction field. The daredevil spirit once acquired is hard to break, he said.

Guests at Theater Party

The speaker also announced as an added effort to reduce the number of accidents, a committee of nine had been appointed by the commission whose duty it would be to investigate all accidents with the view of reducing the number each year. The committee is composed of representatives of the various manufacturing companies.

Glen Rittel, representating the Common Brick Manufacturers Association, one of the speakers at the afternoon session, talked on "Building With Brick." He stated his organization was spending approximately $100,000 a year in promoting the use of common brick. The organization, he said, was composed of 150 manufacturers of common brick. New uses of brick as well as a development of the present uses, is the purpose of the organization, he said.

Wives of the members of the union, who accompanied their husbands to the conference, were guests at a theater party yesterday afternoon and yesterday's program closed with a dinner and dance in the Eagles Hall last night.

This morning's program was given over to conferences of the various committees appointed at the yesterday morning session.

PLANE AGAIN FAILS TO DISCOVER CREW

Nobile Radios That Second Ship Was Sighted Near Camp

Rome, June 19—Radio advices from the Citta Di Milano today stated that Lieut. Lutzow Holm and Capt. Riiser-Larsen again flew over the position given by Gen. Umberto Nobile without sighting the Italian explorer or his marooned crew.

Nobile, however, radioed that he had seen one plane about a mile and a half away but had no way of attracting its attention.

King's Bay advices also stated that Commandant Madelena, flying the Italian seaplane Savoia-55, had arrived at the Spitzbergen outpost and would soon be ready to scour the Arctic wastes for signs of Nobile's encampment on the ice.

Three other relief planes now enroute to King's Bay, were expected to arrive today.

Smith Managers Hail With Satisfaction Withdrawal of Ritchie From Contest

Action of New Jersey Governor Increases Confidence That New York Executive Will Be Nominated on Early Ballot; Reed to Continue Fight

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES

Houston, Tex., June 19—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie's self elimination as a factor in the Democratic convention was hailed with quiet satisfaction here today by those Smith managers already on the ground. It increased their confidence that the New York governor will be nominated early in the balloting—perhaps on the first ballot, and if not on the first, the second.

The Smith people are quietly hopeful that something of this sort will happen. They are extremely anxious to avoid anything that even resembles a bitter contest. What they want is a quiet, harmonious convention that will enable the party for the first time since 1916 to present a united front to the Republicans in November. They contemplated with vast satisfaction the Republican strife at Kansas City, but they realize that if the agrarian bitterness there exhibited is to be of any value to them this fall anything similar to it must be avoided by the Democrats themselves here next week. Consequently, the claws of the Tammany Tiger, while sharp and alert, are sheathed in velvet. What the Smith managers want more than all else is peace and they calculate such actions as Governor Ritchie's will do much to insure it.

Will Fight It Out

More than that they appreciate the numerical value of the 16 votes which Ritchie's action assures for Smith on the first ballot. They are grateful for the moral effect which the Maryland executive's action may possibly have on the wavering ones next week.

Yesterday there were three front rank candidates. Today there are but two—Governor Smith and Senator James A. Reed of Missouri. That the contest in Houston's beautiful new convention hall next week will be between these two there was no doubt whatever today among the Democrats already here. If Smith can be stopped at all—and there are few who believe he can be—it will have to be by Reed; he is the only remaining candidate who has any support at all from outside his own state. Senator Reed will arrive here Friday. He is militant and undaunted by the seeming inevitability of Smith's nomination. His managers are somewhat grimly of the same attitude. Governor Ritchie's action jarred them not a whit, at least, for publication purposes.

WEATHER HINDERING ROAD IMPROVEMENT

Contractors Report Rain Preventing Progress in Marion County

Wet weather is seriously hindering the progress of road improvements in Marion County according to reports from contractors working on a number of new roads.

Grading on three new roads has been completed and contractors are now waiting for a break in the weather to proceed with the work.

The Green Camp-Mt. Olive, the Marion-Crawford County Line and the Mantz-Owens roads are all graded and are ready for the laying of the stone roadbed.

Surface treating as well as the new road work is suffering from the wet weather which has prevailed during the past three weeks.

Roads centering at Waldo are now being top-dressed following the completion of those in the vicinity of Morral. Workers will return to Morral later to complete those roads requiring a top dressing of asphalt.

FLIERS REACH SOUTHAMPTON, GOAL OF TRIP

Amelia Earhart Charms English With Modesty and Retiring Demeanor

GREAT WELCOME GIVEN

Public Reception Follows Luncheon for Trio; Going Next to London

Southampton, Eng., June 19—Miss Amelia Earhart of Boston, the first woman to span the Atlantic by airplane, and her two companions—Pilot Wilmer Stultz and Mechanic Louis Gordon—reached the goal of their daring transoceanic flight here this afternoon in the monoplane Friendship. The plane dropped upon the surface of the harbor shortly before 1:30 p. m. English summer time.

Stultz expressed the sentiments of the other fliers when he exclaimed: "I certainly am glad it is over. Now for a good rest."

The Friendship had hopped off at Burry Inlet, on the South Wales coast, at 11:07 o'clock, convoyed by an Imperial Airways plane. The Friendship carried Capt. H. H. Railey, European representative of the Friendship's overseas flight.

Ships Set Up Din

The Friendship arrived here at 1:17 p. m., but did not descend immediately. It began circling over the harbor while Pilot Stultz picked out a suitable spot to come down. The Friendship alighted upon the water at 1:23 o'clock and was immediately moored.

As soon as the Friendship was sighted through the Channel haze the ships in the harbor set up a din with whistles and sirens. The tumult grew as the plane circled inward and prepared to descend. Bells upon shipboard and in the city were rung in welcome. Crowds along the water front cheered continuously.

Greetings Extended

The flight from Burry Inlet was made doubly difficult by the fact that the weather was rainy and foggy and Pilot Stultz was navigating over strange country with no familiar landmarks to guide him.

As soon as the Friendship touched the surface a number of small craft put out from the shore.

The Friendship alighted about one mile from the shore. A launch that had been waiting for the plane at once took it in tow and pulled it to the Imperial Airways dock where it was moored.

AID STRANGER

Marysville Residents Make Up Purse To Pay Fine

Marysville, June 10—An automobile accident in the business district Saturday afternoon caused the arrest of Philip Ens, of Elizabeth, N. J. when his machine crashed into an oil truck which turned into an alley off Fifth-st. The oil truck was not damaged but Ens' car came out with a badly bent fender and other damages.

Mayor A. F. Robinson, who witnessed the accident ordered Ens arrested and fined him $25 and costs, on a charge of reckless driving. The man had no money and he was placed in the county jail. His wife and eight-months' old daughter who were with him, were cared for by citizens while he was in jail.

A number of citizens who witnessed the accident, protested on the grounds that the driver of the car was not at fault. They proceeded to take a collection and soon had enough money to pay the fine. When they tendered payment, the mayor reduced the fine to $10 and $9.95 costs. This was paid and the balance was turned over to the stranger.

SAYS 25 PER CENT DO MOST BUSINESS

Rotary Club Speaker Gives 75 Per Cent of Merchandise Sold to Small Group

Interesting statistics that revealed the tendencies in modern merchandising were literally crammed into a luncheon talk given yesterday noon to members of the Marion Rotary Club. As usual the luncheon was held in the ballroom of Hotel Harding.

Twenty-five percent of all the merchants sell 75 per cent of all merchandise, G. W. Sully of the Merchants' Service Division of the National Cash Register Co., told the Rotarians.

The remaining 75 per cent of the merchants sell the likewise remaining 25 per cent of the merchandise, he added.

Sully declared that the "floating" class of merchants belonged in the 75 per cent class. He illustrated his statement by telling Rotarians that of 1,200,000 names on the National Cash Register Company's mailing list 850,000 had to be changed last year. All of these, he further stated, belonged to the 75 per cent class.

In Business Longer

The small percentage of merchants who sell the big percentage of merchandise usually remain in business, he explained, eight to 10 years, while the average time the 75 per cent class of merchants were in business was about two and one-half years. In the 25 per cent class he included chain stores, mail order houses department stores and organizations which do their selling by means of canvassers.

Sully gave four reasons why the small class of business men do such a large share of the business. He included in his list advertising, scientific salesmanship, display of goods and departmentizing of stores.

He urged his hearers to stress salesmanship and courtesy and recommended a local school of salesmanship.

The need to plan for the future, Sully said, was due to keener competition and smaller profits.

Ritzy Rosalie

Rosalie is seriously considering the idea of keeping this bon voyage gift for herself! It's one of those very convenient traveling sets consisting of a small iron equipped with substitute heat, some wee clothes pins and a tiny clothes line. Even though the whole outfit does look as though it belongs in a doll's house, the iron serves beautifully as a stove where one can make coffee. And speaking of miniature traveling conveniences there is a small tube containing a compressed sponge for Milady's bath. When dropped into water the sponge expands to normal size.

ROYAL RECEPTION

Florida Quartet Gets Force of Blast in Detroit

Detroit, June 19—Four Tampa, Fla., delegates to the international convention of Civitans are satisfied Detroit is a royal entertaining city.

R. J. Carroll, wearing one of those peculiar Florida washbasin hats, had to convince a policeman he did not plant the County Building bomb yesterday while three companions, R. S. Evans, Frank Williams and N. L. Paleveda, also Tampa boosters for the 1930 convention, spent last night pulling bits of flying glass from their ears and cheeks. Carroll was scratched slightly also.

The quartet, with a letter from one of Judge Alfred J. Murphy's close friends, Mayor D. B. McKay of Tampa, entered the ground floor with a dozen boxes of Tampa-made cigars for Judge Murphy, a gift from the Florida political leader.

As they entered the bombing occurred. It sent cigars flying in every direction except Judge Murphy's for whom they were intended.

2,236 CHURCHES

Membership in Methodist Religious Creature, Number of Churches Smaller

Washington, June 19—The Methodist Protestant Church had 2,236 churches in the United States in 1926 and 191,495 members, the Census Bureau announced today.

The membership is considerably heavier than in 1916, but the number of churches is smaller, indicating the national tendency in all phases of activity toward consolidation.

Total expenditures by the churches amounted to $3,119,600, of which $2,568,660 was for current expenses and $544,867 for benevolences and missions.

The membership was chiefly rural, 126,519 having lived in the country and the remainder in cities and towns. It was largest in North Carolina with 30,992, followed by 28,439 in Ohio, 22,174 in Maryland and 20,788 in West Virginia.

SMITH SOLE TOPIC IN CONVENTION CITY

Backers Believe Governor Will Be Handed on Second or Third Ballot

Houston, June 19—Although seven long, hot days stretch out ahead before the Democratic national convention formally gets under way, machinery soon to be set in motion today which friends of Gov. Al Smith are confident will bring him the presidential nomination on an early ballot. Much water will go over the dam between now and the day when the balloting begins, but just at present Governor Smith seems to be the sole topic of discussion in this flourishing Texas City.

With the arrival here today of George R. Van Namee, pre-convention campaign manager for the New York governor, the Smith-for-president headquarters will be established and the missionary work will be started in earnest. There are some other things that have to be done at a national convention besides nominating a candidate for president and vice president, and these will be taken care of as speedily as possible so as to clear the decks for the Smith drive.

The Smith people who already have arrived on the scene are hoping but not predicting that the New York executive will go over on the first ballot, but they are certain the second or third ballot will see him nominated. Withdrawal of Governor Albert T. Ritchie of Maryland as a contender for the presidential nomination has cheered the Smith forces although they were confident long ago that the Maryland executive would be in their corner at the proper time.

Although the nominations will not be made until after the platform has been adopted the Smith people are planning to see to it that the wishes of the New York governor are fairly well carried out in respect to this document. At a very recent conference in New York between Governor Smith and Van Namee it is understood here that the platform was discussed at great length. According to information here the much discussed wet plank in the platform will only go so far as to declare in favor of a referendum in each state as to whether the Eighteenth Amendment should be liberalized.

Delegation Due Soon

Things will begin to hum in the Smith camp the latter part of the week after the arrival of the New York delegation. John W. Davis of New York, one of the state's eight delegates-at-large, is expected to represent the delegation on the resolutions committee. There had been some talk that Mayor James J. Walker of New York, also a delegate-at-large, might be picked for the resolutions committee but indications now are that he will be elected to one of the other committees.

In all probability, Franklin D. Roosevelt of Hyde Park, N. Y., will be selected to place Governor Smith in nomination. Roosevelt, who is held in high esteem by Democrats of all shades of opinion, served as Smith's campaign manager in 1924.

Pros Believe Course Will Beat Jones In National Open Meet

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, June 10—Although professional golfers seldom make a practice of shouting about a matter like that, except out loud, the idea somehow had penetrated today that pros in general believe that this is to be their year to make Bobby Jones look like the thing you left the night before and see in the mirror the morning after, to be exact, a muff. They say Olympia Fields, over which the National Open Golf Championship will be played from Thursday or Saturday this week, is not a Jones course and the proved to tell you why. It seems that the Chicago course places a premium on accurate pitching with the mashie, niblick and niblic, whereas Jones is supposed to stress long iron approaches and bowling brassie seconds.

Personally, meaning if I was a professional and had to write testimonials and play golf every day and everything, I wouldn't bother about going into detail on Jones' chances in any golf tournament. All I'd do about it would be to keep very quiet and give the law of averages a chance. In any case, I wouldn't bet a golf course against Jones; for that young man is all golfer and, if his short pitches aren't clicking, his long approach putts will be and the result could be much the same.

Jones Looked Past

It might seem, to a man on a limb, that the pros achieved satisfaction of a past indignities at Oakmont last year, Jones looked somewhat muggy on that occasion but the trouble, from the pros standpoint, was that they had nothing to do with the case. They didn't make Jones look the part; he did it himself

This time, however, it may be that their position is more strategic. Having just run one-two in the British Open, Hagen and Sarazen are supposed to be "hot" for the first time in several years; in fact some would have them hot enough to poach an egg. The course too, is said to be ideal, for their type of game and also for those trained by Johnny Farrell, Mac Smith and a half dozen others

Odds Against Jones

Hagen shot the course in the middle sixties when it was somewhat less arduous several years and there is no doubt that he is more the old Hagen today than he was at that time. Sarazen has turned himself into a strict dietitian this year with notable results. Farrell also has gone in strongly for physical conditioning.

In the face of these circumstances and the fact that the field, including the best from England, France and Australia, has known, the odds against Jones will be no better than 6 to 1. I think the matter rightfully considered in this light and not in the sense of whether the course will or will not beat him.

To my uncultivated intelligence this fact alone should be sufficient to prevent any one from becoming overoptimistic over Jones' chances. If I were worth only one dollar against a million I think the matter rightfully considered in this light and not in the sense of whether the course will or will not beat him.

Even if Old Man Weather is agreeable, most of the changes in standings of the Marion recreation ball leagues this week will be due to decisions made last night by the commission when two games were forfeited and another ordered played over.

Lee Street was given an added lease on life when the commission ruled that their contest with Christian No. 2 be played over on June 27 at Fairfield starting at the first of the third inning.

The score will start at 1 to 0 in favor of the Lee Street organization. A formal protest on the initial encounter of the two teams was entered by Lee Street on the grounds that a runner was assisted in going from third to home by a coach. The man was called safe at home giving the Christians a run that tied the score at one all. The final score of the contest was 3 to 1 in favor of the Christians.

Ignore Second

A second protest on an umpire's decision was ignored by the commission. That was when a Lee Street runner was called out between third and home. The umpire of the contest stated that the base runner walked off the field after the ball had been thrown to the catcher.

By virtue of the decision Lee Street advanced into second place and by winning the game can move into a tie for first place.

Forest Lawn was awarded a game from First Reformed when it was learned that ineligible players were used by the latter team. This placed the Reformed team back in last place with no games won.

Help Kiwanis

Eligibility again entered into a game when Huber was awarded a contest from the Excavators.

Players from the Silk Mills will be permitted to participate in games with the Kiwanis team, the commission ruled. After the first game of the season the Kiwanis aggregation has been unable to get enough men together for a team. This action of the commission is expected to strengthen a weak spot in the Commercial League.

July 1 will be the last date for new players to be used in the lineups. After that date only players whose names have appeared in the box scores will be permitted to take part in the games.

Games Wednesday

Rain resulted in all games being postponed in Sunday School League No. 2. These were ordered by the commission to be played Wednesday night.

Tonight, weather permitting, contests in Sunday School League No. 1 will be played. Few changes in league standings are anticipated when the following contests will be played: Presbyterian No. 1 vs. Epworth Seniors at Lincoln; St. Mary's vs. Epworth at Silk Mills; Trinity vs. Christians at Fairfield; Calvary vs. Wesley at Central.

Belgian Champion to Meet Napoleon Dorval Tonight

New York, June 10—Two of the younger set of heavyweight hopefuls pointing at the fall and winter eliminations meet this evening at the Queensboro Stadium, when Pierre Charles, Belgian champion, exchanges thumps with Napoleon Jack Dorval.

Charles is the best of the foreign crop of heavyweights. He came here last winter, placed himself under the direction of Gus Wilson, former trainer of Georges Carpentier and Jack Dempsey, and proceeded to make a reputation. Phil Scott and Arthur De Kuh were the only opponents who outscored him.

Charles is willing and a good hitter, but not so forte in his defense against the stabbers and jabbers. Dorval is faster than the Belgian and should outpoint him tonight but Pierre will always be in there trying.

Dorval was originally sponsored by Jack Kearns, who thought he saw another Dempsey in the young New Yorker. Napoleon couldn't seem to get started, and suffered from so many ailments that Kearns finally stepped out on him. Dorval is now handled by Harry Lenny.

It is not inconceivable that one of these youngsters may be the heavyweight challenger next year. A twelve-month ago Tom Heeney was far more obscure than either.

George Godfrey Resting up For Battle With Johnny Risko

Ridley Park, Penn., June 10—George Godfrey, heavyweight black menace, today is resting up for his bout with Johnny Risko at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, tomorrow night. Godfrey expects to leave for the scene of the battle early tomorrow morning.

At the conclusion of his final workout yesterday the dusky combatant weighed 236 pounds. Jim Dougherty, his manager, proposes to put him through rope skipping and light bag punching today to lop off an additional two pounds.

WESLEYAN ATHLETES ENTERED IN TRYOUTS

Four Delaware Students Will Take Part in Sectional Olympic Meet

Delaware, June 10—Four Ohio Wesleyan university athletes will be entered in the Allegheny Mountain Sectional Olympic tryouts to be held at the University of Cincinnati, June 21 and 22, Coach Gauthier of Ohio Wesleyan announced here today.

Dwight Kane, Lancaster, national collegiate high hurdle champion, who has already qualified for the final Olympic tryouts in the high hurdles, will try at Cincinnati to qualify in the 400-meter hurdles. Kane's best record for the high hurdles this year is 14.7 seconds. He holds the Ohio intercollegiate records for both high and low hurdles.

Charles Stone, Payne, holder of the Ohio intercollegiate javelin record, will be entered in that event. Stone, who graduated from Ohio Wesleyan last year, is consistently throwing the javelin over 200 feet.

Norman Lambacher, Independence, will be entered in the sprints. Carl Slavosky, Bardonia, will again try to qualify in the 440 yard dash.

All Outdoors AND Where To Go

BY JAMES W. STUBER

Columbus, June 10—Theodore Roosevelt said: "A people without children would face a hopeless future; a country without trees is almost as helpless. Forests are so used that they cannot renew themselves will soon vanish, and with them all their benefits. When you help to preserve our forests or plant new ones you are acting the part of good citizens."

If the outdoors is to be kept as a fit place to enjoy wholesome recreation every outdoorsman must take a vital interest in preservation of forests and the wild places. This is part of the duty of every camper, tourist, hunter or fisherman. American timber is being cut much faster than it is being planted or grown. As the forests go, the game, wild life and fishes go with them.

The pleasure-loving American in their thoughtlessness and speed-thrift-way are taking too much away from the outdoor and giving too little back. There must be replacement of forests as well as replacement of game and fish life. Great strides are being made by forestry departments, in various states and in a score of colleges, but each individual "outer" should contribute his or her share to forest preservation.

No Trained Foresters

Fifty years ago America had no trained professional foresters. It was then believed that our vast timber resources never could be used up. Today no one knows better than the editors of the newspapers the necessity for forest conservation restoration. They liberally and willingly give many columns of valuable space to educating the public as to the needs of forest areas.

With this in mind every camper should remember that one match carelessly thrown away, or one cigarette thoughtlessly thrown aside, may burn a million feet of timber—and may cost lives. Every campfire should be put out with water before leaving. Campfires should never be built where they can spread and cause a forest fire. It is stated on reliable authority that due to carelessness of campers an area almost as large as the State of New York has been burned over by forest fires in a single year.

It is good sportsmanship to make sure that YOU are not responsible for a forest fire. When you go to the forest states or to Canada hunting or fishing keep this ever in mind.

Here are a few good locations for deer and bear if you are planning a big game hunt this fall. (Later good locations for moose will be given.)

La Tuque, Quebec—About 100 miles from Quebec City. Reached via Canadian Pacific or Canadian National Railway from Montreal to Quebec and Canadian National from Quebec. Good fishing for trout in season. Deer and bear plentiful. The outfitted in this territory who can advise as to locations and cost is Armand Tremblay, at La Tuque. Special railway rates to sportsmen.

St. Felicien, Quebec—St Felicien is 200 miles north of Quebec City. It is on the Ashuapmouchouan River. C. W. Bates, guide, can tell all about this territory. He is reached by mail at St. Felicien. Ohio sportsmen can reach St. Felician via Detroit to Montreal over Canadian National or Canadian Pacific and from Quebec via Canadian National to destination. It's not advisable to motor.

ZERO HOUR ARRIVES FOR ANNUAL REGATTA

Seven Varsity Crews to Battle in Four-Mile Race Tonight

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 10—Zero hour has at last arrived for the husky grants who man these seven varsity crews of Columbia, California, Cornell, Pennsylvania, Navy, Syracuse and Washington which will battle through the four long, gruelling miles, of the famous Poughkeepsie-Highland straightaway course at dusk tonight in the twenty-ninth renewal of the championship regatta of the intercollegiate rowing association.

As the start of the varsity race draws nearer and nearer popular opinion becomes more firmly intrenched in the belief that the honors of the day will be between the rugged crew of the University of California, and the highly temperamental although physically powerful Columbia eight which a year ago surprised the rowing world by smashing through to a totally unexpected victory over Washington, the Navy and California.

PETTY STARS AS ROBINS WIN, 4-3

Veteran Hurler Repels Phils With Four Safeties; Hornsby and Cuyler Punctuate Doubleheader With Homers; Red Sox and Cubs Break Even

New York, June 10—Baseball fandom turned its attention to the Robins pitching staff again today. Jess Petty, veteran hurler, repelled the Phils with just four safeties yesterday.

After a hectic first session in which the Quakers nicked him for three hits and two tallies Petty tightened up his delivery and quelled the bats of his hosts until the ninth frame when he yielded to a single. Jimmy Ring, the Philadelphia twirler, kept things fairly well under control until the closing inning when he slipped two cogs and allowed a brace of hits, one of which proved costly—Hendrick scoring the winning run on Herman's single. Timely batting by the Brooklynites aided materially in the victory.

Heavy hitting punctuated with homers by Rajah Hornsby and Kiki Cuyler, plus more than a score of runs, featured the double header split by Chicago and Boston.

"Big Bill" Thompson's "bat" proved no match for Rajah and clan at bat and in the field and was humiliated to the tune of 10 to 2 the first game. But the Cubs more than avenged for their defeat smearing the bean-eaters with costs of whitewash, taking the second game, 12 to 0. Boston required services of four pitchers, including Kent Greenfield, to hold the Loop diamond artists to 20 hits, two which were circuit clouts by Cuyler.

The Cincinnati Reds nosed out St. Louis Cards in an exciting 14 inning game, winning 4 to 3. Going to the ninth frame the Reds led by one run margin. Bottomley retrieved matters with a timely homer. Rajah's single by Kolp, relief pitcher, with Critz out and Dressen on third, settled the contest for the Reds in the 14th.

Stocks Drop As Money Rates Advance In Correction Movement

BULLISH RANKS ARE HARD HIT

General Motors Takes 4 1-2-Point Slump in Heavy Selling Period

BY W. S. COUSINS
International News Service Financial Editor

New York, June 19—Money rates went up and stocks went down today in a movement which showed quite clearly that the "correction" of an overdone speculation had not been completed. From the first period it was evident that the amount of stock forced on the market would be greater than in the last day or two, while bullish forces appeared more or less demoralized by the reaction of the 10 days. Selling orders for General Motors, Radio and other speculative leaders poured in, and the level of prices was forced down to below that of last Tuesday, when the heaviest break of the year occurred.

Call money was firm at the opening of the market, and when the banks called in funds for their mid-week reserve balances, the rate promptly advanced to six per cent. Between this date and July 1 preparation for the July settlements will necessitate the withdrawal of a huge volume of funds from the speculative markets, and it is in fear of the effect of such withdrawals that hundreds of small traders have been liquidating their holdings of industrial stocks, while others have declined to purchase until this cloud has been removed.

General Motors new 4 1-2-point drop to below 172 was an unsettling factor in the bullish ranks in the forenoon, as stocks of the stock were thrown on the market by the professionals, and stoploss orders were uncovered in good volume.

Some "distress" selling of the over-extended pools, investment trusts and individual traders was reported in all markets, and forced liquidation appeared as the only remedy for impaired margins and the gradual whittling away of the resources of traders, big and small.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S MARKET

Chicago, June 19—Grain prices melted away sadly toward the close yesterday after numerous spasms of short-lived strength in wheat and corn during the session. At the close those cereals looked sick.

Wheat finished the day with a loss of 1½@1⅝; corn was down ⅝@1¼; oats were ¼ lower to ¼ higher; rye was off ½@1.

Efforts to bull wheat were carried on chiefly by the pit element. The only incentive appeared to be belief that the break had gone far enough. Nothing in the news warranted buying.

The Liverpool market was off sharply before the Chicago market opened. Here wheat dropped about a cent at the outset, but it recovered, and even showed a flash above the last close.

Early Buyers Get Out

During most of the trading period the market was rather dull and uninteresting. As the session waned the enthusiasm of the early bulls went with it. During the last half hour early buyers were trying to get out of their purchases and wheat broke through its early lows to the bottom prices of the day.

The only reason for buying wheat today lies in the possibility that the market may be oversold and technically in shape for an upward reaction. But that is by no means certain, and if the market shows strength early it may fade away again before the close.

On the other hand, however, if it opens lower—which is not unlikely—and has a fast break it may hit a point where support will have some effect. Even in such an event, however, prices might not be able to get back above the close of yesterday.

Warmer weather and more moisture in the Northwest may be reported today early and keep the bearish picture on the wheat situation fresh and convincing.

Concerning the Northwest

One man who has a lot of wheat planted up in North Dakota not far from the Canadian line, just back from his farm, told me that he never saw wheat looking any better than it is in and around that section of the country.

The Canadian situation gets more bearish, rather than less so, and the general news from abroad is not of such nature as to give strength even to foreign markets, to say nothing of prices over here.

Warmer weather, and good rains over the corn belt, are likely to weaken corn decidedly. That will not help wheat any.

Bulls struggled to make a showing with corn yesterday, but the net result of their efforts was depressing. They could not keep prices up. Toward the close corn turned very weak.

Warmer weather today is likely to begin bringing reports from the corn belt of wonderful progress the new crop is making. There were a lot of bulls in corn yesterday, and their buying—with that of shorts—may have weakened all the futures technically.

It was worth noting that all day in the pit June corn was being offered at a cent and more under the July future. That was not the right kind of a situation for bulling July corn on supposed cash demand.

The decrease in the visible supply of corn was big—2,912,000 bu—but it wasn't big enough to hold the market after it was posted.

Toledo Close

Toledo, June 19—Cash grain closed: Wheat, [illegible]; corn 2 yellow [illegible]; oats [illegible]; rye [illegible]; timothy [illegible]; clover [illegible]; alsike [illegible].

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Prices in both the vegetable and fruit markets were changed little today from yesterday. Supplies appear to be ample and dealers report buying about normal. Home grown strawberries continue to come on the market in quantities just about sufficient to meet the demand. The berries are of good quality and are selling at 25 cents or two quarts for 45 cents. That the crop will fall below that of last year in the general opinion of growers.

Other fruit prices are steady, watermelons continue to be limited in supply and the price is holding at from 65 to 85 cents; the fruit is smaller than that which sold at from $1.00 to $1.50 several weeks ago but is of good quality. Pineapples for canning continue fairly plentiful and dealers were asking from $1.25 to $2.50 a dozen. Canteloupe are holding at 15 and 20 cents, the supply is large and dealers report an increase in demand.

New potatoes are selling at 45 and 50 cents a peck and are supplying practically the entire demand, old stock having disappeared from the market. Dealers were carrying a large supply of egg plant today that was selling at 20 and 25 cents each. Spinach is holding at two pounds for 15 cents and leaf lettuce at 18 cents. Cauliflower continues high; fairly large heads were selling at 35 and 40 cents. Asparagus is scarce, dealers carrying a limited supply today that was selling at 10 cents a bunch. Cucumbers were selling at two for 15 and 25 cents. Dealers were carrying small supplies of tomatoes that were selling at 20 cents.

Prices on various products are as follows:

New potatoes, 43 to 45c peck.
New cabbage, 8c lb.
Egg Plant, 20c & 25c.
Cucumbers, 2 for 15 and 25c.
Wax Beans, 18c, 2 for 35c.

Ruby Iona, daughter of Wilford Herman and Dorothy Postle, was born in Marion, Ohio, March 22, 1920, and departed this life June 15, 1928, aged 8 years 2 months and 22 days.

She was the oldest of four children: two, Kenneth and Leonard having preceded her in death.

She leaves to mourn their loss her father and mother, one sister, Ruth Ella, her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Postle, and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Powelson, and a host of relatives and friends.

"There is no death! The stars go down
To rise upon some fairer shore,
And bright in heaven's jewelled crown
They shine for ever more.

"There is no death! An angel form
Walks o'er the earth with silent tread;
He bears our best loved things away,
And then we call them 'dead.'

"He leaves our hearts all desolate;
He plucks our fairest, sweetest flowers;
Transplanted into bliss, they now
Adorn immortal bowers."

Divorce Suit Filed

Suit for divorce has been filed in Common Pleas Court by Bianca Sharpless against Edward F. Sharpless. The petition of the plaintiff charges the defendant with gross neglect, extreme cruelty and intoxication.

The plaintiff also asks that the defendant be barred from his dower right in property in Orchard Heights and that he be restrained from disposing of or encumbering property on S. Vine-st and S. Main-st which is valued at $23,000.

The petition asks the court to award the plaintiff temporary and permanent alimony. Donithen and Donithen are attorneys for Mrs. Sharpless.

HOLD SERVICES

Caledonia Church of Christ Plans Children's Day Program

Caledonia, June 19—At the Sunday school hour at Memorial M. E. Church Sunday a delegate was chosen to represent the Sunday School at the State Sunday School convention being held at Van Wert this week.

A good attendance was present at the morning preaching service when the pastor delivered a fine sermon on "The Coronation of Individuality." He used for his text and scripture reading a part of the sixth chapture of Isaiah. A special musical service was presented at the evening worship hour by the Jonathan Glee Club of the Central Methodist Church, Mansfield.

Mr. Constance, also of Mansfield, gave a descriptive talk on conditions that exist in the Kentucky Mountain regions. Chorus numbers, a quartet number and a solo, "Face to Face" composed the program. A offering was presented the club members who are using this plan of raising money to pay for the heating system the club has installed in the Henderson Settlement School in Kentucky. Rev. Fancher closed with the benediction.

At the Church of Christ, Sunday was the regular Bible study and preaching services. "To Each One His Work" was the subject of the morning sermon and the night sermon subject "Jesus As a Teacher," delivered by the pastor Rev. R. E. Stevens. Miss Naomi Clouse lead the Christian Endeavor meeting preceding the night service.

The Clouse sisters and the male quartet contributed numbers on the program at a special service held at the chapel Sunday morning.

A Children's Day program is arranged to be given at 8 o'clock Sunday evening at the local Church of Christ.

State Conventions Next Feature of Politics Here; Fourth in Congress Race

Hancock County Republican Files For Eighth District Post; G. O. P. Meeting Will Be Held in Columbus June 28 and 29

With the list of candidates for political offices in Marion County complete, political leaders today were turning their attention to the state conventions to be held in Columbus the latter part of this month.

With the last days for filing declarations of candidacy only a few days off, political office seekers are not yet in the full swing of the campaign. The primary shake, newspaper political advertising and candidates cards have only begun to make their appearances. As the campaign warms however all three will swamp the public as the number of candidates this year is among the largest ever recorded here. A count made when the curtain fell at 12 o'clock last Friday night showed that 130 persons had filed declarations of candidacy with the Marion County Board of Elections.

Fourth for Congress

Individual candidates will be responsible for their own pre-primary campaigns from all appearances as little interest is expected from the political organizations until period between the primaries and the November election. No mass meetings may be arranged in the interests of gubernatorial candidates the Republican and Democratic State Central Committees are expected to take a "hands-off" attitude while the voters have designated their choices.

The political corner on candidates for representative to Congress was reached yesterday afternoon when the declaration for candidacy of Walter F. Brown was certified to the Marion County Board of Elections from the Hancock County Election Board.

Eagleson is a resident of Findlay and is the third Republican to file for the post. Grant E. Mouser, Jr., and George R. Knapp, both of Marion, are the other Republicans in the race. Brooks Fletcher, of Marion, is unopposed as the Democratic candidate for nomination.

Other declarations of candidacy certified here from the Hancock County board were those of Edna Bright Herschman, and Gertrude Jones, both of Findlay, as candidates for posts on the Republican State Central Committees. Fred W. Warner, of Marion, and R. E. Ratcliff, of Hardin County, have filed here for the same office.

G. O. P. Meet June 28, 29

Little is known here at present of plans for the Republican and Democratic state conventions. The former will be held in Columbus Memorial Hall on June 28 and 29. Confirmation of the selection presidential and vice presidential candidates and the adoption of state platforms will be the chief duties of the delegates.

The 12 delegates to represent Marion County at the Republican state convention are:

Elmer E. Blazer, LaRue; Hoke Donithen, Marion; Edna Dutton, Marion; Edith Eibling, Marion; William N. Harder, Marion; W. H. Harrington, Marion; Albert Johnson, Prospect; Grant E. Mouser, Marion; Mrs. Estella Osborn, Waldo; Leona Gertrude Porter, Green Camp; Fred W. Warner, Marion; and J. D. Williamson, Marion. Albert Johnson however, has died since the primaries. He will be replaced by an alternate.

The Republican alternates are: Warren Bull, Marion; H. W. Cookston, Marion; Sarah Jean Cooper, Marion; Avery M. Davis, Marion; Verne O. Day, Mecker; Laura Foster, Marion; Mary G. Gast, Prospect; Carier M. Patton, Marion; Mrs. Belle Thew, LaRue; Emma Uhler Vorhees, Marion; Margaret Ward, Green Camp; and Ralph G. Williamson, Marion.

Democratic Delegates

Delegates to the Democratic convention are:

C. R. Harrison, Caledonia; A. W. Bryant, Patricia Fye, R. E. Grubaugh, J. W. Jacoby, M. W. Kline, C. B. Rayburn, C. G. Retterer, Cleah J. Snyder, H. F. Stock, Chester Trout and Ben T. Wiant, all of Marion.

The alternates are: O. S. Anthony, Waldo; F. T. Campbell, Charles H. Conley, S. H. DeLong, Howard F. Guthery, A. L. Mulott, Elmer J. Salter, Charles E. Smith, J. J. Stafford, Marion O. Stoll and Joseph Voll, all of Marion.

SOUTHAMPTON, GOAL OF TRIP, REACHED

come. There was a distinguished assembly upon the dock including American Consul John M. Savage who extended greetings in the name of the United States.

Cheering Increases

The Friendship was anchored to a buoy just in front of the piers. The machine looked bright and shiny and showed not the slightest scar nor trace of the rough weather through which it had passed on the 2,400-mile flight from Trepassey Bay, N. F.

A huge United States flag, donated by Mrs. Savage, wife of the American consul, floated from a flag pole in the saddle of the dock pier. It obstructed the view of the spectators who wrapped the flag around the pole. Several Americans, who looked upon this action as a slight, rushed forward and unwrapped the banner and once again it floated out in the misty air.

As the big red and gold plane was being towed slowly through the water with the crew still inside the spectators shouted and waved hats, handkerchiefs and flags. The cheering increased as the Friendship appeared around the stern of a big docked liner.

When Miss Earhart, wearing her flying clothes, appeared in the doorway of the cabin the welcoming din reached its climax.

Mechanic Gordon remained behind the others to cover the motors with heavy canvas to keep out the moisture. After he had finished this job to his satisfaction he also got into the launch.

Miss Earhart looked both proud and happy. She had had a good night's rest in an old fashioned "homey" hotel at Pembrey, Wales, near Lanelly, and showed no trace of the weariness entailed by the long and dangerous sky voyage over the ocean. Her face was flushed and her eyes shining.

Girl's Modesty Wins

As she stepped ashore she was handed a huge bunch of American Beauty roses by Mrs. Guest.

Mrs. L. M. Welsh, the woman mayor of Southampton, made a little speech of welcome, saying how delighted the people of the city were to greet the first woman to accomplish a transatlantic flight.

Miss Earhart eliminated her own self entirely.

Following a luncheon there was a public reception when many persons met Miss Earhart, shook hands with her and congratulated her upon her feat. It was arranged that the three fliers should have a rest of a couple of hours before leaving for London. After the reception Miss Earhart began to look a little tired. Her modesty and retiring demeanor won the hearts of those who met her. She was described as "typically feminine."

American Consul Savage was delighted over the fresh honors accruing to America's enterprise in the international field of aviation.

"Americans may well be proud of Miss Earhart and her flying companions," said the consul.

Since early morning crowds had been gathering along the harbor front to greet the Friendship. The plane was first sighted over Calshot—the seat of a Great Britain airdrome—at 1:15 o'clock. A blanket of gray fog obscured the sky and the plane was barely visible through the haze.

Harbor Grace, N. F., June 19—After changing their plans several times following Miss Amelia Earhart's successful flight to Europe Miss Mabel Boll and her two companions, Captains Oliver Le Boutillier and Arthur Argles, have decided to take off on a flight to Rome at noon today, weather permitting.

Although it rained here last night, weather reports indicated flying conditions over the Atlantic would be good today.

Yesterday morning, an announcement was made by the fliers in which they stated they would abandon their plans to fly across the ocean and ship the plane to England for a westward attempt instead.

Later, however, they decided that since everything was in readiness for the flight, they would adhere to their original plans.

PLAN PACIFIC HOP

Miss Verna Redpath and Clarence White To Attempt Flight

Flint, Mich. June 19—Undaunted by the fate of Mildred Doran and Augie Pedlar, of Flint who died in a brave effort to wing the Pacific to the Hawaiian Islands, Miss Verna Redpath, 22, and Clarence B. "Whitey" White, 22-year-old flier, today are planning to try to hop to Hawaii.

"I followed the preparations and start of the Miss Doran (Pedlar's plane) with keen interest," Miss Redpath said, "and I thought at the time how wonderful it would be if I could do something like that. When 'Whitey' asked me if I would fly across the Pacific with him, I jumped at the chance."

Miss Redpath and White have not decided definitely when they will start for the coast to prepare for the flight.

WILL ATTEMPT SOLO

Thea Rasche To Take Off Today on First Leg of Flight

New York, June 19—Her newly acquired Bellanca Monoplane poised on the runway at Curtiss Field, L. I., Thea Rasche, intrepid German aviatrix was expected to take off today for Old Orchard, Maine, on the first leg of her proposed solo transatlantic flight to Berlin, Germany.

Providing weather conditions over the expansive turbulent waters of the Atlantic are favorable, Thea will take off from Old Orchard tomorrow. The plane was put through its final test yesterday and met with the satisfaction of the fair pilot.

Thea's announcement of her intention to hop off for Old Orchard, today came as suddenly and unexpectedly as did the announcementd of the abandonment of her plans for the ocean flight last week when it was announced she was having difficulty in financing the flight.

Mrs. James Stillman, wife of the banker, sympathetic with Thea's disappointment over the cancellation of her flight came to the woman flier's aid and purchased from A. R. Martine, the aviatrix's flight manager, his Bellanca Monoplane greatly sought by her. Mrs. Stillman ,who has long been keenly interested in aviation has undertaken to finance the venture. Out of deference to the banker wife's interest in astrology and astronomy the name "The North Star" has been emblazoned on the fuselage.

RAILROAD PLANS TO BUILD COAL DOCKS

Program of T. & O. C. at Toledo to Cost $1,500,000

Toledo, June 19—That the Toledo and Ohio Central Railroad operated by the New York Central, plans to spend approximately $1,500,000 within the next year on a new dock at its terminal in Toledo was reported here today.

While officials of the T. & O. C., here, withheld comment, it was said that estimates were being scrutinized in connection with the mammoth dock, construction of which would double the present coal loading facilities at Toledo as concerns the loading of coal on boats. Toledo's position as the first coal port on the Great Lakes, it was said, would be considerably enhanced by the expansion of the T. & O. C. docks which are located on the east bank of the river above the Cherry-st bridge.

The project involves the improving of more than a half mile of dock frontage, and construction of an electric loading machine similar to that now in use at the Toledo New York Central terminal, according to reports.

The new dock unit, it was said, will be operated under contract by the Ashtabula and Buffalo Dock Co., which runs the present equipment for the railroad.

The Toledo and Ohio Central, one of Ohio's largest coal carriers, operating between Toledo and Corning, connects at Crnig with the Kanawha and Michigan Railroad, another great coal carrier.

NATION'S EFFICIENCY MAN IS NOMINEE

Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, nominated by a very efficient Republican convention at Kansas City, has proved the essence of efficiency in himself. This pictorial record of his climb from a poor boy to his present high position proves that America is still a land of opportunity. From a humble home at West Branch, Iowa, Herbert Hoover, backed by an excellent education at Stanford University, forged his own way through many tight places, including the trying war days, to his present position as Republican nominee for president.

Mosquitos Must "Sit Down and Bite," Guards at Summer White House Report

Superior, Wis., June 19—This is the annual mosquito story that emanates from the summer White House.

They must "sit down and push." Unbelievers can apply to the secret service and the Third Infantry, guardians of President Coolidge's Brule River Camp for complete confirmation.

Says the army sergeant who drives the car of Col. James A. Coupal, the White House physician: "Boy they bite like bulldogs."

At night, the troopers patrolling the estate wear mosquito masks of netting roughly resembling parrot cages and gloves.

All along the 35-mile road from Superior to Cedar Island Lodge are intermittent signs extolling the virtues of various mosquito salves and lotions.

While talking to the president seated inside the porch, one of the first visitors started counting the mosquitoes perching on the outside of the screen. He got into the hundreds and got dizzy.

Only one dissenting voice is raised from the camp. Dick Jerris, the handsome child of the White House secret service detail, insists they are "very nice mosquitoes."

A photographer swears he saw two men on the streets of Superior wearing earmuffs, and stocking caps are common among the kids despite the advanced date.

HOOVER AND CURTIS PLAN FOR CAMPAIGN

Vice Presidential Nominee Arrives in Capital for Conference

Works On Program

Hoover, it was learned today, is giving much consideration to his agricultural program and hopes to offer a concrete plan that will be acceptable to both the McNary-Haugenites of the Mid West and those who oppose the equalization fee principle. He already had convinced Senator McNary, Republican of Oregon.

Four essentials in a "long-view" policy, according to Hoover's ideas, are:

(1)—Better organization in farm marketing.

(2)—An agriculture better balanced to the demand.

(3)—Stability of business as a whole.

(4)—Elimination of waste in production and distribution, not only of what the farmer sells but what he buys, thereby increasing the benefits both ways.

Considers Factors

A compilation of Hoover's views, obtained at the Commerce Department, showed that among the factors which would aid the farmer through increase in national efficiency, include consolidation of railroads, development of electric power supply, waterways and synthetic nitrates at Muscle Shoals.

The rail consolidation plan, he feels, would allow a sure readjustment of rates in favor of the farmer, through wider diversification of traffic, greater economy in operation financial stability and better handling of terminal problems.

Not For Price-Fixing

The compilation of Hoover's views contains this statement:

"There is no scheme of price fixing by the government, whether direct or indirect, or by government buying and selling of farm products, which will not in the end, bring complete disaster to the farmer."

The creation of a federal co-operative marketing board, proposed at a general agricultural conference called by President Coolidge several years ago, was at that time favored by Hoover, and it was understood that he still clings to the idea as a plan for obtaining markets for crop surpluses.

There must be some great springs on the Hoover band wagon to stand the sudden strain to which they were subjected.

Monday's rain may have looked to a lot of people no different from an ordinary one, but as a matter of fact it was a shower of gold to a lot of our agricultural friends.

It's mighty unfortunate for New York that the Houston convention wasn't pulled off this week instead of next. Things are going to be mighty dull in the metropolis next week with the dancing marathon over and Mayor Jimmy Walker out of the city.

Frederick Delano, city planner and a member of the national capital park and planning commission, objects to the term, beautiful, in describing the city of Washington, holding that beautiful may be properly used in describing a woman, but that it is too effeminate a word for application to a city. There's another reason, and a lot better one, why the term, beautiful, should not be used in connection with the federal capital. It can hardly be used honestly till a lot of old shacks throughout the city have been eliminated.

A Woman's Ambition.

Well, a woman has at last made a flight across the North Atlantic, and a very fast nonstop one at that.

The cables told us Monday that Miss Amelia Earhart and her two companions in the tri-motored seaplane, "Friendship," Pilot Wilmer Stultz and Mechanic Louis Gordon, had made the 2,400-mile flight from Trepassey bay, Newfoundland, to Burry Inlet, off Llanelly, in Carmarthenshire, Wales, in twenty hours and forty-nine minutes, which means an average speed of 110 miles an hour, and that, having refueled, the trio hopped off again, and made the flight to Southampton.

The aviators say that the weather was very bad, forcing them to "fly blind" most of the way across.

The quiet, business-like way in which preparations for the flight were made demonstrates most becoming modesty on the part of the air voyagers. Their courage goes without the saying, but what the flight has accomplished of scientific or practical interest is hard to say. Certainly no claim has been made thus far to any accomplishment along those lines. But Miss Earhart has accomplished her ambition of being the first woman to make the transatlantic flight, and thus has qualified for the movies and the vaudeville stage, if such is her purpose, as it is liable to prove, judging by the aftermaths of other adventurous accomplishments by women. If such is the one result of the exploit of Miss Earhart, its value is negligible, but if her successful crossing keeps other ambitious young women from risking their lives in attempts at transatlantic flights its value will have to be recognized.

Still, it may be well to remember that there are many other ways in which young women may risk their lives to gain publicity, and, so far as that goes, we still have other oceans and the westward Atlantic flight has not yet been made by a woman.

Senators Are Flayed by Juror.

The assault through the medium of the press made by Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, on the jury which last week acquitted Colonel Robert W. Stewart of the charge of contempt of the senate has brought a stinging reply from a member of the jury in which the Nebraskan is roundly scored and Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, his fellow-radical, and Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, are flayed.

In commenting on the case of the chairman of the board of directors of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, Senator Norris got off that old one, seemingly dear to him, to the effect that it is impossible to convict a millionaire. Resenting the entire attitude of the Nebraskan, Erwin B. McIntyre, speaking for himself and his fellow-jurymen, refutes the imputation that the jury was influenced by Stewart's wealth, or lack of wealth, and says that the acquittal verdict was found because the jury believed Stewart to be innocent, the prosecution having utterly failed to make a case against him; that it was evident to the jury that Stewart was being pressed in order that a case might be made against Harry Sinclair and that the jury was disgusted with the committee's methods. The text of Juryman McIntyre's reply reads, in part:

"The jury found Mr. Stewart not guilty because we were impressed by the slipshod methods followed by the senate committee and the senate itself. While the case did not turn on the absence of a quorum, we did not believe there was any quorum present or that there were any regular minutes kept. Moreover, we know that congress can delay matters of vital importance for long periods of time and we saw no great public reason why Mr. Stewart's testimony as to whether he had any conversation with Mr. Sinclair could not very well have been postponed until after the Sinclair trial.

"We listened to more than ninety pages of testimony given before the senate committee by Mr. Stewart and not once did we find that the committee adopted the question, asked him, or ordered him to answer or gave him any warning which indicated that the committee would hold that if he did not answer he would be indicted and tried for a criminal offense.

"Moreover, we were impressed by the fact that while Mr. Stewart was led by Senator Nye and Senator Walsh to believe that he would be given an opportunity to have the questions repeated to him the next day; a rather scurvy trick was played on him instead by placing him, without warning, under arrest in his hotel.

"There was in our minds very grave doubt that there was any violation of law, and under the law, and under our oaths, Mr. Stewart was entitled to the benefit of any doubt."

We are not especially interested in the case of Colonel Stewart, save as an illustration of the extent to which the rights of American citizens are being infringed upon by senatorial inquisitors, who would subrogate the constitution of the United States to the senatorial rules and practices. That they have been going to extremes in this respect is very generally recognized throughout the land. Witnesses who do not go along with the purposes of such committees are browbeaten, abused and humiliated until it is almost, if not quite, all a man's reputation is worth to appear before a senatorial investigating committee and go counter to its wishes. And this is particularly true when such a committee is out "to get" somebody. Then the witness runs the chance of having a scurvy trick played upon him, such as this juryman charges was played on Stewart; he is made the victim of an attempt to throw him into jail.

The whole senate system in regard to the treatment of all save its members is utterly wrong and indefensible. Under senatorial privilege, so-called, members of the type of those who in recent years have done so much to cause the senate to lose the esteem it once held, utter suspicions and intimations utterly without foundation, make charges for which there is not the slightest basis of fact, and slander and traduce people alike in private and public life, sparing neither the living nor the dead.

It has come to an unfortunate pass when a prominent and responsible attorney can say of a senator, as one did for publication in Washington, a few days since: "His asperions, several times repeated, upon honest men and women of this city who have served on juries are as contemptible as they are unjustifiable, as indecent as they are inexcusable."

And—by the way—the senator referred to by the attorney was Senator George W. Norris

Seven roads leading into Poughkeepsie have been closed by the authorities to spooners. Everybody seems bent on fanning the "revolt of youth."

Even though Mary Pickford may have to pay more duty on those twelve trunks of clothes because they are worth more than she paid for them, why should she worry. Isn't first-page publicity in practically every newspaper in the land many times recompense for the trifling added amount she may have to surrender? And isn't it just possible Mary may have thought of that?

"What can be done in 1933?" asks a Chicago paper, referring to her centennial celebration planned for five years hence. The shrewdest thing would be to clean up the city, that the risk of attendance may not be ultra-hazardous.

THROUGH THE EYES OF YOUTH.

'Shingles' Warn Against Overwork.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

There are endless forms of painful diseases. Just think how seldom it is that you are absolutely unconscious of your body. Your scalp itches, or your toe hurts, pinched by a too tight shoe, or there is a tickling in the throat with an inclination to cough. As you read this and stop to think of your own feelings at the moment, you will find a little ache somewhere.

Of course, these trifling things are of no consequence. As compared with real pain, certainly, they do not count. But there are all too many human ailments where pain is the chief symptom. Some of them are unimportant so far as life is concerned, but while they last they are excruciatingly painful.

Such a disease is herpes zoster.

The common name for herpes is "shingles." The common seat of the trouble is a wavy running line from the backbone around one side of the body to the middle in front. The skin is red and here and there are patches of blisters.

This disease of the skin is always one sided. It may show itself almost anywhere on the body, from head to foot. It attacks just the area supplied by a single nerve.

The reason why there is a limited area such as I have described, is because the disease is caused by a disturbance in the root of the nerve. As a result there is failure of proper action in the nerve endings. The nutrition of the skin supplied by the nerve is interfered with and inflammation results.

I have spoken of herpes as a painful disease. It is not always so. Sometimes it comes on so quietly that its trouble is discovered only by accident The first noticeable sign is the eruption.

More commonly, however, the area is very sore and, in some cases, exceedingly painful. Following the healing of the eruption there may be severe neuralgic pain for many days. Burning sensations and sensitiveness to cold may persist for weeks.

The blisters or vesicles are very small, perhaps the size of a pins head. There may be a few of these, or several may run together to make a patch or eruption. At first the blisters are filled with clear fluid, but this soon turns milky and then absorbs. The scab falls off in a few days. The whole process ends in a couple of weeks.

Sometimes the nerve supplying the eyelids and forehead is the one affected. This is a more serious form of herpes, because the eye, itself may become involved. This type is called by a long name—"herpes zoster ophthalmicus."

It is my experience that herpes is a tired man's disease. To be constantly worried, or overworked, or run down from any cause—any one of these things invites trouble of this sort. Nature is very kind, but, if you mistreat her, she must protest in some way to remind you of your shortcomings. You may consider yourself fortunate if nothing worse is sent to punish you.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

I. R. Q—What can be done for a bunion?

A—Wearing broad-toed shoes is often very helpful. In some instances ,placing a pad of cotton between the great toe and the second will relieve pressure on the point and clear up the trouble. Where the condition is of long standing, surgery is often necessary.

• • •

R. B Q—What causes hives and how can they be cured?

A—This condition is usually due to some food which causes irritation. You should watch your diet to see which food or foods aggravate the condition and avoid them. Send self-addressed stamped envelope for further particulars and repeat your question.

• • •

R. E. M. Q—What would cause the ankles to feel weak? I can not seem to keep them straight. I feel better when I wear tight fitting shoes with high heels.

Editorial Opinion.

ONE OF THE WEST'S OWN.

If the Republican national convention had designed in advance to select a running mate for Herbert Hoover who, as a matter of pure practical politics, would suit both ends and the middle of the electorate, it could not have done better than to decide upon Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas, the Republican floor-leader. That is to say, Mr. Curtis has been a regular of regulars in his support of the Coolidge administration, he has been friendly enough to the McNary-Haugen bill not to offend its professional sponsors, and he has treated the insurgents of his party with such consideration that even before the convention assembled such party outlaws as Nye, of North Dakota, declared that if Norris, of Nebraska, could not hope to win, the insurgent group would be contented with Curtis, of Kansas.

Senator Curtis was the first man to announce his candidacy for president in formal fashion, and he was very sincere in his expectation of victory; so sincere, in fact, that he scorned any suggestion of second place, in such language as to make him persona non grata to Mr. Hoover, were it not that that sagacious gentleman, as well as all the friends of the Kansas senator, knew that his bark was worse than his bite; that he is the most loyal of Republicans under any circumstances.

Partly of Kaw Indian blood, and therefore an original American, a jockey in his youthful days, but a boy who earned the money which educated him, and who made his own way in the world, Charles Curtis is one of the sweetest characters in the realm of politics. He has not an enemy in the senate, where his diplomacy has been turned to account in a thousand embarrassing situations, and despite his regularity he, like Moses, of New Hampshire, has not incurred the special ill-will of the pseudo-Republicans. He is a clever politician, but not of the self-seeking type, his fantastic candidacy for first place notwithstanding. His position as Republican floor-leader has made him perforce a harmonizer, and because of that position, in the trying four years which have just gone by, his colleagues have not expected him personally to be a champion of any issue.

Senator Curtis is a dry, he is not an offensive partisan of the farm relief extremists—he put in a bill of his own which did not authorize the equalization fee—and he as admirably reflects the sentiment of the old-time West as any man that could have been selected. If he is of presidential size, it is because the most intimate possible experience with governmental problems has trained him into an efficiency which might not have been developed had he occupied a less responsible position in the senate. The West can not attack the ticket without attacking Curtis—and Curtis is one of its own. It was this realization, unquestionably, that led the convention to decide upon his nomination for second place with such practical unanimity.—Boston Transcript.

Amidst Mountain Lightning.

BY GARRE[illegible] SERVISS.

The peak called [illegible] in the French Alps, is one of the [illegible] climbers, i. e., hard to be climbed [illegible] teur mountain-eers, Messrs. P. Bal[illegible] Boniface, lately had an extraordinary [illegible] on the summit of this redoutable [illegible] They had made the ascent without a [illegible] the weather, not understanding certain [illegible] at the clouds and atmosphere were g[illegible] storm at hand. Neither some huge [illegible] capping the Aiguilles d'Arves nor a strong [illegible]zzing in the air, like swarming bees [illegible] suspicions, but a few minutes after [illegible] set foot on the head of the Meije the [illegible] suddenly turned gray, the rocks lost [illegible] sharp outlines, and a tempest of snow sprang [illegible] them. All this occupied hardly five [illegible]. From a bright day on a snow-clad, sunshiny peak, they found themselves plunged [illegible] a whirling wind, driving before it clouds of snow and volleys of hail.

They could find no shelter except in a cleft of rock. The pointed summit on which they were imprisoned by the storm seemed to have been turned into an electric accumulator, and the air was filled with sharp whistling sounds like those of a whistle blowing off steam. At the same time they felt the hairs on their heads and bodies standing on end, this sensation being accompanied by a most irritating pricking of the skin.

The electric charge seemed to rise to a certain intensity, at which point to an abrupt release occurred, marked by a sound like that of a red-hot iron plunged into water. They felt the attending shock especially in the elbows and knees. Suddenly there was a disturbance in the air, and the charge seemed to fall to zero. Thereupon a ball of fire, with its center of a pale straw color and the circumference of a violet hue, sprang into sight over their heads and disappeared in the mist. Coincidently a cold dry breeze stirred their hair. The ball of fire looked about as large as an orange seen at the distance of six feet. It was visible for a second, following a wavering course through the mist, and making a noise resembling that of an insect flying. A few instants later a rumble of thunder echoed from the Valley des Etancons. Then the whistling sound was again heard in the air, and within about a minute a second ball of fire appeared and followed the same path as that of the first. At the moment of its appearance the wind seemed to have totally ceased. Both observers noticed a strong odor of ozone when the balls of fire were seen.

The storm now moved off, and the mountain gradually cleared itself of clouds, but it was too late for the adventurers to attempt to descend. Luckily the night became serene, but a bivouac on such a mountain under any circumstances could only be extremely painful and perilous. However when daylight appeared they succeeded in descending without accident

"Lightning balls" are very rare phenomena, so rare that many have doubted their actual occurrence. But the evidence for their occasional existence seems conclusive, and this story of an adventure with them on a lone mountain peak, on the very apex of what would seem to have been one of nature's temporary lightning rods, is unique.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, June 19 — Broadway's chang[illegible] from a pleasant pastel to a garish lithogra[illegible] is almost complete. Only a few old time [illegible] pots of the famous thoroughfare remain. What has been called the Bowerymization [illegible] Broadway began when trade began its nort[illegible] ward march on Fifth avenue. That was abo[illegible] fifteen years ago. The metamorphosis w[illegible] slow but certain. Old landmarks began [illegible] vanish and the present Midway Plaisan[illegible] jangle took foot.

Hane yesterday afternoon at Lotalla Inn, Mt. Gilead. A 1 o'clock luncheon was followed by an afternoon of bridge. THE birthday anniversary of the bride was the day chosen by Miss Vernice Helen Lowery of Willard, and Henry Carl Ackerman, 342 S. State-st, for their marriage this morning, at 11:30 o'clock, at Trinity Evangelical Church in Willard. The single ring service of the Lutheran Church was read by Rev. G. C. She also carried a small Colonial corsage of old-fashioned flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Ackerman left immediately after the wedding for a several weeks motor trip through the east. They will be at home after Aug. 1 at 342 S. State-st.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Lowery of 219 Woodbine-st, Willard, and had been employed as a nurse at City Hospital for the last 18 months. SCHAFFNER'S

The Mystery at Styles

THE YEAR'S MOST BAFFLING SERIAL STORY

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

CHAPTER 21

POIROT, who was watching me intently, gave a sigh.

"Ah, me, my friend," he said changing the subject, "apart from Mr. Inglethorp how did the evidence at the inquest strike you?"

"Pretty much what I expected."

"And nothing strike you as peculiar about it?"

My thoughts flew to Mary Cavendish and I hedged:

"In what way?"

"Well Mr. Lawrence Cavendish's evidence for instance?"

I was relieved.

"Oh, Lwarnce! No, I don't think so. He's always a nervous chap.

"His suggestion that his mother might have been poisoned accidentlly by means of the tonic she was taking, that did not strike you as strange—hein?"

"No, I can't say it did. The doctors mentioned it of course. But it was quite a natural suggestion for a layman to make.

"But Monsieur Lawrence is not a layman. You told me yourself that he had started by studying medicine, and that he had taken his degree."

"Yes, that's true. I never thought of that." I was rather startled. "It is odd."

Poirot nodded.

"From the first, his behavior has been peculiar. Of all the household he alone would be likely to recognize the symptoms of strychnine poisoning, and yet we find him the only member of the family to uphold the strenuously the theory of death from natural causes. If it had been Monsieur John. I could have understood it. He has no technical knowledge, and is by nature unimaginative. But Monsieur Lawrence—no! And now, today, he puts forward a suggestion that he himself must have known was ridiculous. There is food for thought in this, mon ami!"

"It's very confusing,' I agreed.

"Then there is Mrs. Cavendish," continued Poirot. "That's another who is not telling all she knows! What do you make of her attitude?"

"I don't know what to make of it. It seems inconceivable that she should be shielding Alfred Inglethorp. Yet that is what it looks like."

Poirot nodded reflectively.

"Yes, it is queer. One thing is certain, she overheard a good deal more of that 'private conversation' than she was willing to admit."

"And yet she is the last person one would accuse of stooping to eavesdropping."

"Exactly. One thing her evidence has show me. I made a mistake. Dorcas was quite right. The quarrel did take place earlier in the afternoon about 4 o'clock, as she said."

I looked at him curiously. I had never understood his insistence on that point.

"Yes, a good deal that was peculiar came out today," continued Poirot. "Dr. Bauerstein, now, what was he doing up and dressed at that hour in the morning. It is astonishing to me that no one commented on the fact."

"He has insomnia," I believe," I said doubtfully.

"Which is a very good, or a very bad explanation," remarked Poirot. "It covers everything, and explains nothing. I shall keep my eye on our clever Dr. Bauerstein."

"Any more faults to find with the evidence?" I inquired sttirically.

"Mon ami," replied Poirot gravely, "when you find that people are not telling the truth—look out! Now, unless I am much mistaken, at this inquest today only one—at most, two persons were speaking the truth, without reservation or subterfuge."

"Oh, come now, Poirot! I won't cite Lawrence, or Mrs. Cavendish. But there's John—and Miss Howard, sure y they were speaking the truth?"

"Both of them, my friend? One, I grant you, but both—!"

His words gave me an unpleasant shock. Miss Howard's evidence unimportant as it was, had been given in such a downright straightforward manner that it had never occurred to me to doubt her sincerity. Still, I had a great respect for Poirot's sagacity—except on the occasions when he was I described to myself as "foolishly pig-headed."

"Do you really think so?" I asked. "Miss Howard had always seemed to me so essentially honest—almost uncomfortably so."

Poirot gave me a curious look, which I could not quite fathom. He seemed about to speak, and then checked himself.

"Miss Murdoch too," I continued, "there's nothing untruthful about her."

"No. But it was strange that she never heard a sound, sleeping next door; whereas Mrs. Cavendish, in the other wing of the building, distinctly heard the table fall."

"Well, she's young. And she sleeps soundly."

"Ah, yes, indeed! She must be a famous sleeper, that one!"

I did not quite like the tone of his voice, but at that moment a smart knock reached our ears, and looking out of the window we perceived the two detectives waiting for us below.

Poirot seized his hat, gave a ferocious twist to his moustache, and, carefully brushing an imaginary speck of dust from his sleeve, motioned me to precede him down the stairs; there we joined the detectives and set out for Styles.

I think the appearance of the two Scotland Yard men was rather a shock—especially to John, though of course, after the verdict, he had realized that it was only a matter of time. Still, the presence of the detectives brought the truth home to him more than anything else could have done.

Poirot had conferred with Japp in a low tone on the way up, and it was the latter functionary who requested that the household, with the exception of the servants, should be assembled together in the drawing-room. I realized the significance of this. It was up to Poirot to make his boast good.

Personally, I was not sanguine. Poirot might have excellent reasons for his belief in Inglethorp's innocence, but a man of the type of Summerhaye would require tangible proofs, and these I doubted if Poirot could supply.

Before very long we had all trooped into the drawing-room, the door of which Japp closed. Poirot politely set chairs for every one. The Scotland Yard men were the cynosure of all eyes. I think that for the first time we realized that the thing was not a bad dream, but a tangible reality. We had read of such things—now we ourselves were actors in the drama. Tomorrow the daily papers, all over England would blazon out the news in staring headlines.

"Mysterious Tragedy in Essex"

"Wealthy Lady Poisoned"

There would be pictures of Styles, snapshots of "The family leaving the inquest"—the village photographer had not been idle! All the things that one had read a hundred times—things that happen to other people, not to oneself. And now, in this house, a murder had been committed. In front of us were "the detectives in charge of the case." The well known glib phraseology passed rapidly through my mind in the interval before Poirot opened the proceedings.

I think every one was a little surprised that it should be he and not one of the official detectives who took the initiative.

"Mesdames and messieurs," said Poirot, bowing as though he were a celebrity about to deliver a lecture, "I have asked you to come here all together, for a certain object. That object, it concerns Mr. Alfred Inglethorp."

Inglethorp was sitting a little by himself—I think, unconsciously, every one had drawn his chair slightly away from him—and he gave a faint start as Poirot pronounced his name.

"Mr. Inglethorp," said Poirot, addressing him directly, "a very dark shadow is resting on this house—the shadow of murder."

Inglethorp shook his head sadly.

"My poor wife," he murmured. "Poor Emily! It is terrible."

"I do not think, monsieur," said Poirot pointedly, "that you quite realize how terrible it may be—for you." And as Inglethorp did not appear to understand, he added: "Mr. Inglethorp, you are standing in very grave danger."

The two detectives fidgeted. I saw the official caution, "Anything you say will be used in evidence against you," actually hovering on Summerhaye's lips. Poirot went on.

"Do you understand now, monsieur?"

"No. What do you mean?"

"I mean," said Poirot deliberately, "that you are suspected of poisoning your wife."

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TUESDAY. When I let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth this morning I poked my head out and looked for the squirrel but it was not anywhere around. I asted my grandfather where it had probly went and he said mebby it had a married brother and went to visit his folks and my ant got mad, and my grandfather said: "Migosh, can't we even talk about squirrels without you getting mad?" And my ant told him that it was the second time he had handed her that, and it was about time he stopped it, and my father looked up and said, "Did you two have words before you fell out?" and my grandfather said he kinda liked to stir up the animals.

My father has got his brother and sister living with us, and my mother has only got her father and he pays board; so my father hasn't got any kick coming. But I was glad when I had fed my face and swiped a couple of pancakes for Jubilee. If my father had a kick coming I bet it would land on me.

When we had our cows out we went out to the place where Younies got hit and spread out in a long line and looked for snakes but we didn't find one, and Feeble showed us where she found the one she killed. She said a man told her they come out of the rocks where the old quarry is that they don't work any more, and he said the place ought to be dynamited next winter and all the snakes cleaned out.

We got out hats full of berries and went way out of our way to take some to Younies at the hospital, and a lady all dressed in white said Younies had went home. And we gave the lady some berries and then we went to Younieses house and she was setting in a rocking chair with the sore foot up on another chair, and she was glad to see us and we dumped our berries into her mother's dishpan and she said she would make us a dewberry cobbler, so we stayed and walked the fence and turned cartwheels where Younies could see us through the open door, and when she was dishing up the cobbler and I had got mine in a dish as big around as a saucer and as deep as a soup plate and was starting to set down on the front step with it the Last Rag of Tripe come along and leaned on the fence and looked at me.

I didn't notice anything at first, and then I looked again and there was a squirrel's tail sticking out of the side of his hat and I must of jumped half ways to the fence and he jumped all the way to the middle of the road and then we were picking them up and putting them down, and when I got almost on his heels he began to pull away from me so I plastered him on the back of the neck with the cobbler and he hollered that I had burnt him to death and laid down and began to roll over and holler so I put the dish on a fence and snuck out and me and Jubilee hid under the stink factory till cow time.

Love's Awakening

THE HEART STORY OF A WOMAN'S AFFECTIONS

By ADELE GARRISON

Edith Fairfax Supplies Family Gossip

"Oh! Madge," came Edith Fairfax's lilting voice over the telephone, "I sure have had the old boy's own sermon to get you. I want a few seconds' powwow with the Dicky bird, but first, how's Junior? I've been terribly anxious about him."

As she spoke I half unconsciously recorded a disquieting impression which her voice made upon me. It was the faint but unmistakable metallic note marring the soft musical Southern drawl which always had been one of her chief attractions. To me it was significant of the change which had taken place in the beautiful Virginia girls' character in the years that I had known her.

In the days when she and her gentle younger sister, Leila had been the lovely, bewildered, incompetent protegees of a group of artists and illustrators headed by Lillian Underwood and Dicky, I had known that she cared as much for Dicky as did her sister Leila for Alfred Durkee, Dicky's chum, who later became Leila's husband. But even when the stress of Dicky's accident at the Mineola flying field, she lost outrol of herself and threw in my face the challenge that she loved my husband much better than I did, I had recognized the girl's high-mindedness and sportsmanship. I also has realized that she would keep her secret from Dicky, and try heroically to conquer the love which was wrecking her happiness and that of her distant cousin, Dr. Jim Paige of North Carolina, who had loved her from childhood.

But her sudden and unexpected success in the business and advertising end of an art magazine in which Dicky had sunk a good sum of money, had seemed to me to mark a distinct dividing line between the old incompetent, tremulous, winsome girl with a high sense of honor, and the brisk, assured competent, highly attractive woman who appeared to have taken "Myself first," for her life motto. The hint steel in her voice was carried out in her personality, I told myself, and I no longer placed any reliance in her sportsmanship. I believed that she would use any means in her power to win Dicky's affections and although I had had ample proof that there was no hint of romantic reaction to her in his heart, yet the knowledge made it difficult for me to keep up the fiction of friendship with her demanded by Dicky's partnership with her, and by my own deep affection for her sister, Leila Durkee.

I believed that her inquiry after Junior, however, was prompted by genuine concern—she several times had given proof of her affection for the child and—and the realization helped me to force my voice to cordiality.

"Thank you, Edie, he's ever so much better," I said wondering even as I spoke, how she had learned about the Junior's illness. Dicky, I supposed, But we had been together almost constantly since our boy's accident, and I had not known of his either writing or telephoning to Edith during that time.

"Sure there will be no after effects?" she asked.

"No, the physician appears to think all danger is past." Instinctively I choked back the information that the child must stay in the country for the Winter, but her next speech showed me that my caution was needless.

"It's a wonder you or the Dicky-bird wouldn't have let me know about that accident," she said with just the touch of grievance in her tone which an old family friend would display. "I only heard of it today in the most roundabout way. Noel Verirson told his father about it over the telephone, and the old boy happend to meet Alf and told him, and then Alf, being a good egg if he is a brother-in-law, telephoned me. You'll probably have a phone from Alf too. He's quite cut up about it. But he isn't a circumstance to old Phil Veritson. Alf said he was quite pathetic, though his chief concern appeared to be the possibility that you might decide to stay in the country this Winter with Junior."
